Re: Notice of Infringement/Counterfeiting of Audi AG's ("Audi") Intellectual Property

Dear Mr. Tamsut:

We represent Audi in its intellectual property matters. We are reaching out to you because you are listed as attorney of record for CarParts.com, Inc. d/b/a CarpartsWholesale and/or Evan Fischer Auto Parts ("CarParts.com") in the USPTO's database records.

It has recently come to our attention that CarParts.com is manufacturing, importing, exporting, advertising, marketing, promoting, distributing, displaying, soliciting sales of, selling and/or otherwise making available products that infringe the Audi IP, including the Audi Marks ("Infringing Products") via the Evan Fischer Auto Parts eBay store² ("Evan Fischer eBay Store") and its websites³ (the "Carparts.com Websites") (collectively, the "Caparts.com Stores"). Below are non-exhaustive examples of the Infringing Products listed on the CarParts.com Stores:

CarParts.com's actions reflect a deliberate disregard of Audi's intellectual property rights. CarParts.com's unauthorized use of the Audi IP is not only intended to (and actually does) confuse, deceive and/or misdirect consumers as to the source or origin of its Infringing Products, but also leads to the belief that the Infringing Products are connected, affiliated with, approved or otherwise sponsored by Audi, when, in fact, they are not. CarParts.com's actions are particularly damaging to Audi given that CarParts.com prominently features the Audi IP and lists Audi's OEM part numbers in connection with the Infringing Products in close proximity to CarParts.com's own trademarks as shown in the non-exhaustive example below:

Moreover, since the marks used on or in connection with the Infringing Products are virtually identical, or at the very least, confusingly similar to the Audi Marks as shown in the exemplary and non-exhaustive screenshots above, there is no question that CarParts.com is intentionally trading off of the substantial goodwill associated with Audi and its Audi IP.

Be advised that CarParts.com's use of the Audi Marks constitutes one or more of the following: trademark infringement, trademark dilution, and/or unfair competition, which, if pursued in court in the U.S., would entitle Audi to seek, among other things, statutory damages (up to $2,000,000 per counterfeit mark), and attorneys' fees.

In light of the foregoing, we demand that CarParts.com immediately cease and desist any and all production, importation, exportation, advertising, marketing, promotion, distribution, display, solicitation of sales and/or sales of the Infringing Products and remove any and all references to Audi and the Audi Marks from the CarParts.com Stores including the CarParts.com Websites and Evan Fischer Auto Parts eBay Store and any other online or physical locations where the Infringing Products are available. We also demand that CarParts.com comply with the following within five (5) days of the date of this notice:

1. Confirm in writing that all manufacture (domestic and foreign), importation, exportation, advertising, marketing, promotion, distribution, display, solicitation of sales and sales of the Infringing Products has ceased and that CarParts.com has ceased and will refrain from any and all future use of the Audi Marks and any marks that are likely to cause confusion with the Audi Marks;

2. Surrender all Infringing Products and ancillary goods in CarParts.com's possession, custody or control;
3. Provide us with a complete list of ALL sources of Infringing Products (i.e., name and address of the manufacturer, importer, distributor, and/or retailer);
4. Provide us with a full accounting of all purchases (number of units and price) of the Infringing Products, from the date of the first sale of any of the Infringing Products to present, and ANY and ALL documentation of CarParts.com's transaction(s) with CarParts.com's source(s). This includes, but is not limited to: correspondence/communications received or sent by CarParts.com concerning the Infringing Products, agreements between CarParts.com and CarParts.com's source(s), and ALL purchase records evidencing such purchases of the Infringing Products (i.e., order forms, payment records, receipts, invoices, and shipping documents, etc.); and
5. Provide us with a full accounting of all sales (number of units and price) of the Infringing Products, including total dollar amounts and ALL sales and inventory records reflecting the same.

Audi considers CarParts.com's egregious conduct to constitute a serious violation of Audi's rights and to be very damaging to Audi's business, reputation, and the goodwill associated with the Audi Marks. CarParts.com's failure to comply with the demands set forth herein will only assure Audi of CarParts.com's intention to continue to willfully infringe the Audi Marks. In such a situation, Audi will take any and all actions necessary to enforce its rights to the fullest extent of the law. Accordingly, we thank CarParts.com for its anticipated cooperation and prompt attention to this matter.

Nothing in this notice shall be construed as a waiver or relinquishment of any rights or remedies possessed by Audi or any other affected party.

Sincerely,

William C. Wright
